Instt. Guessword Finals.

A large turnout came to watch the Instt. Open Guessword finals at CLT. With progress of time, the crowd dwindled. A cat ambled in (trying to cash off some eclairs ?) While many of the words were bouncers, there was a change all of a 'sudden'. Later, again, all concerned were 'bamboozled'. Every U, there was a 'change of guards' ceremony. KGP steadily compiled his winning score while Frenchie and Shanks were worse off with the rotating system. Chai and Vasu were desperately vying for the mic.

The resulting Instt. team is KGP(38), Shankar(36), Pop(33), Frenchie(26), Srivatsan(25) and Mohan(20).

INTER UNIV TENNIS.

IIt, taking part in Inter University after a lapse of eight years, did well to reach the last eight where they lost to fancied Sri Venkateshwara University, Tirupati. Ramesh did not play in any of the matches as he had to go home.

We got a walkover from JNTU Hyderabad in the first round. The JNTU lads landed up in Madras without a manager and the organisers refused to let them play. Our next encounter, with Annamalai Univ. , went our way 3 - 0.

Dutta, playing the second singles, lost the first set but came into his own after that and was leading 3-0 in the third set when his opponent conceded the match. Otherwise it was smooth sailing all the way.

With the blessings of The Lord, SVU brushed aside our challenge.

Sir,

Kudos to SPECTATOR. Every item, line and even every word is a joy to read. It covered GF & KR tournaments very well, with plenty of puns. One feels like reading it all over again. SPECTATOR is a magazine which relieves tension, if any, prevalent in the minds of IITians at least for some time.

Congratulations ! Keep it up !!

FLOATING POPULACE :

Many in the audience for Western Music kept coming in and going out of OAT. It was really a 'floating' population.

OLD TIMES :

With Western Music on at OAT it was reminiscent of old times. Yes, it even smelt like old !

SOLO(0)ACE :

Pity the fellow who went solo. He could have gone out and bought himself a duet - yourself - kit.

IN-'FORMAL' EVENTS

Mardi Gras is having its second taste of these events. This year, it is being organised on a much larger scale than last time. In fact, if you see a crowd you can be sure that the informal events are 'in form'. The emphasis is, ostensibly, on people coming together and not competition. However things are turning out to be real formal, and teams were even seen practicing for tomorrow's games yesterday.

The events should be announced in advance but the organisers should form the teams by drawing lots in situ. Only then will things be 'informal' in the real sense of the term.

But meanwhile, the show must go on and its going fine. Good show 'INFORMAL MEN'

But for this,

We remain,
